WARNING: By Signing This You Are Waiving All Your Legal Rights, Including the Right to Sue.

PLEASE READ CAREFULLY

To: The Northwest Wilderness Society of the Unitarian Church, and its directors, officers, volunteers, agents and employees (collectively referred to as "NWWWS"): I wish to visit and stay at land owned by NWWWS on Kootenay Lake, also known as Fry Creek Camp or Wilderness, and to use that land for camping and outdoor recreation. I understand that for NWWWS to permit me to do so, I must read and sign this document.

Disclosure of Risks

I acknowledge that my use of Fry Creek Camp involves the following risks, amongst others:

1. Those inherent in camping on undeveloped land beside a wilderness lake.
2. Use of boats, and associated risks, including collisions and sinking.
3. Drowning, hypothermia, hyperthermia, falls, burns, cuts, and bruises.
4. Attacks by animals and insects.
5. Landslides, debris torrents, and floods.
6. Fires, forest fires and falling trees and limbs.
7. Use of camp tools.
8. Heavy wind and rain.
9. A remote location with limited first aid facilities.

In addition to the dangers and risks inherent in travel to and use of wilderness areas, wilderness camping, hiking, lake and river recreational activities, I am aware that these activities may have certain additional risks and dangers, which include:

1) Boat Transport: Boat operators are volunteers who assist other campers in getting to and from the camp. The wind can quickly change Kootenay Lake from a calm state to one of danger in minutes. Boat operators have the right to decide whether or not they will operate the boat in difficult weather. You are responsible for your decision to use or to not use the boat. Campers cannot assume that the boat operator is an expert in judging and predicting weather conditions. Natural hazards include deadheads, rocks and other obstacles, changing lake levels, and collisions. The carrying capacity of NWWWS's boat is limited. You are responsible for the proper stowage of the boat.

2) Equipment Maintenance: NWWWS owns a boat, several canoes, several outboard motors, and miscellaneous tools, pumps and equipment, including power tools. NWWWS does its best to maintain this equipment, but its use involves risk of injury. You are responsible for your safe use of all equipment.

3) Wilderness Camping: Tent sites are not cleared, altered or maintained in any way by NWWWS. Fry Creek Camp is in the delta of Fry Creek. Natural hazards include the falling of trees, landslides, waves, debris torrents, sharp objects, and rocks. There may be structures or debris left by previous campers. The water is not treated in any way. You are responsible for assessing the safety and hazards of the site you choose, and behaving accordingly.

4) Camp Activities: Recreational activities include hiking, swimming, campfires, building and using 'bridges' across the creek, sauna construction and use, building and using a tri-pod 'swing' into the lake, digging toilet pits, building 'candle boats' for Hiroshima Day, treasure hunts, cliff jumping and much more. You are responsible for assessing the safety of these activities, and deciding whether or not you will participate in them.

5) Hiking: The area around Fry Creek Camp offers much hiking, on unmaintained trails and off-trail. It is your responsibility to judge whether you are competent, fit and prepared for hiking in the area.

6) Water Activities: Kootenay Lake is cold, and hypothermia is always a possibility. Fry Creek, especially the north arm, is a swift flowing river. You must assess the level of water risk you are prepared to accept. There are enough life jackets for users of the boats. It is your responsibility to be satisfied with the size, fit, type, condition, and approval rating of life jackets provided by NWWWS, and to ensure that you use them properly at all times. Personal flotation devices must be used in all boats, canoes and other watercraft at all times!

7) Medical Treatment: Fry Creek Camp is in a remote area, with very limited services. Medical treatment is not immediately available in the event of illness or accident. Weather, darkness, and other factors may affect any ability of emergency services to respond. You are responsible for being prepared for all medical needs, and taking appropriate medical or emergency action when required.

8) Minors: Persons under 19 years of age often stay at Fry Creek Camp. You are responsible for the active supervision and safety of all minors in your care, at all times.

10) Information: Please inform NWWWS and all campers as soon as possible when you become aware of a safety issue or hazard.
